We walked Anthony out earlier this morning. (Larry, Sergey: For all the things we might like about him, he has also been remarkably duplicitous...I'm not speaking about second-hand impressions, I'm talking about discussions that he and I had had in the last week.)

Today, he's told people he wanted a Sebastian-like separation from Google...that that might provide higher satisfaction for him. (Chelsea Bailey will provide full exit info.)

At the same, he's actively recruited many people from the team (dozens, we believe). [REDACTED]

We believe he has set up a new company already (perhaps two weeks ago) called 280 to put a package together to shop to Uber and others.

Will fill you in on other details asap.

the fun never ends in chauffeurland.
i think regardless of the details of this issue [REDACTED]

we should also connect today about what to do with the specifics of anthony.
you guys around in the next hour [REDACTED]?

Very duplicitous, and counter to his discussions with me just yesterday.

We believe he may be taking a big portion of the team.
I'll update you.
